

1 will be a major foundational (indiscernible) Titanium?

2 MR. STOLLAIRE: Yeah, we're solid. It's going
3 to be like VP. And since you brought up quarter two, I'm 4 going to tell you I lied, there's one more thing I've got 5 to tell you from the announcement that I forgot that's 6 kind of important in this area.

7 MR. RAY: Okay.

8 MR. STOLLAIRE: It's the same thing: Under 9 promise, over deliver. Get it where we want it to be,
10 one, two weeks out, and then do the fine tuning. Do some 11 internal testing, any type of things that come back that 12 we feel should be improved, et cetera.

13 But we're in target, and I feel very strongly
14 and confident that that's not going to be a problem
15 whatsoever. But back to the Poma payment system.

16 MR. RAY: Okay.

17 MR. STOLLAIRE: I told you the beta tests are 18 rolling, but these services that I'm talking to you
19 about, this is a may -- not a will -- okay, may become 20 publicly available as soon as quarter two this year.

21 MR. RAY: So we are looking at this going live

23 MR. STOLLAIRE: Yes.

24 MR. RAY: -- in the second quarter of 2018?

25 MR. STOLLAIRE: Not 2019.

1 MR. RAY: You know, to be honest with you, I
2 think we need to understand this very clearly, Michael,
3 because the way Titanium has been perceived as that if 4 you look at the roadmap, there's development, there's 5 milestones. So 2019 -- and they think that 2019, end of 6 2019 is when everything will be ready for live.

7 MR. STOLLAIRE: No.

8 MR. RAY: But look at this TBAR will become a
9 live bar -- live TBAR being used in the ecosystem of the 10 WordPress in the second quarter of 2018? Am I clear
11 there?

12 MR. STOLLAIRE: Not promising it because you
13 know what's going to happen now --

14 MR. RAY: Okay.

15 MR. STOLLAIRE: -- what's going to happen --

16 MR. RAY: Yeah, what -- yes --

17 MR. STOLLAIRE: -- is people are going to take 18 -- that have video skills, and they're going to cut
19 everything out, and there's going to be Michael promises
20 that no doubt. Again, we're shooting for it.

21 MR. RAY: Okay.

22 MR. STOLLAIRE: Again, this is what we want to 23 do, but this is also normal, Ray, okay?

24 In '05, HP -- here's the best example. If I've 25 used it before on your show, I'm sorry.

1 MR. RAY: Okay.

2 MR. STOLLAIRE: The most prominent, salient
3 example of all time. For a few years, people were coming
4 to them, and I was there, frankly, doing alpha, beta
5 testing for them and Compaq at the time, Iridium.

6 And they said, hey, people are coming in and 7 saying, we need application performance management. This
8 -- the level of detail and instrumentation for enterprise
9 management is just not getting there. We need to know
10 what's going on inside that application. Sound familiar,
11 Ray?

12 MR. RAY: Yes, it does.

13 MR. STOLLAIRE: Hey, HP is like, yeah, we're 14 number one. We don't need that, whatever. And so this 15 other company that was still there -- it's not new, but 16 relatively new -- Mercury Interactive concentrated on 17 this, knew that this was the future, or they were 18 confident that it was the future, and they paid attention
19 to that feedback, and they developed the most extensive,
20 best-of-breed application performance management,
21 enterprise management tools in existence, and boy, did it
22 catch on.

23 MR. RAY: Wow.

24 MR. STOLLAIRE: They became a multi-billion
25 dollar corporation.

1 it.

2 They spent less, and what happened to the 3 timeframe that we were just talking about?

4 MR. RAY: Okay.

5 MR. STOLLAIRE: That's all I'm doing. I'm 6 constantly looking for things like that, that can take 7 the things that we want to achieve and take it back.

8 MR. RAY: Okay.

9 MR. STOLLAIRE: I'm always -- I'm saying, if we
10 do it, it's out here. But what if we form a synergistic
11 partnership, right? What if we take more and more pieces
12 of Wall Street here -- for good or bad -- mergers,
13 acquisitions --

14 MR. RAY: Yeah.

15 MR. STOLLAIRE: -- activist investors like --
16 okay, and then we take them into the Titanium ecosystem
17 as partners, the synergy forms. We're circling the 18 wagons, and then those timeframes go from here to here.

19 MR. RAY: True.

20 MR. STOLLAIRE: This announcement today is an 21 example of just that. Read the white paper. We're just 22 telling you if we're on course -- under promise, over
23 deliver -- we're just giving extremely conservative
24 timelines and numbers.

25 However, if you think we're just looking at

1 that with blinders on, no, we're not, we're constantly
2 looking for opportunities, for synergies, for things to 3 do that will accelerate our timeframes and make our 4 products even better, even faster. Always looking. How 5 can we improve?

6 MR. RAY: That is very important. And
7 definitely the M&As, which are looking at the mergers and 8 acquisitions, these are important in an ecosystem.

9 MR. STOLLAIRE: Yeah.

10 MR. RAY: And what you're trying to do here is 11 definitely what I can understand, and people understand 12 that.

13 Now, again, I'm not holding you anything
14 responsible for quarter two, but I'm just making a 15 presumption that, okay, there is something which is in 16 the works, let's be ready for that. And we're constantly
17 -- Titanium is constantly working towards that.

18 MR. STOLLAIRE: Exactly.

19 MR. RAY: Thank you, appreciate that.

20 MR. STOLLAIRE: One thing -- no guarantees.

21 The only guarantee I can give about this is --

22 MR. RAY: Okay.

23 MR. STOLLAIRE: -- we're going to do our damn
24 best. That I can guarantee you.

25 MR. RAY: And that's what everyone is looking

1 satisfied. It's going to be a paradigm shift.

2 MR. RAY: Awesome.

3 MR. STOLLAIRE: Right.

4 MR. RAY: You stole my word. I was about to 5 say that -- paradigm shift. Okay, that's exactly --

6 MR. STOLLAIRE: They're not listening.

7 MR. RAY: Yes.

8 MR. STOLLAIRE: They're not listening to 9 anyone. They're not listening to you, anybody who -- 10 again, it's kind of like infrastructure is a service. My 11 competitors -- well, they're the best there is. No.

12 Titanium Infrastructure as a service is here.
13 They're not listening. You're complaining. If they 14 don't want to change their product to make it better so
15 that the customer knows they're always right, and you're 16 satisfied, the hell with them. We'll do it. Now, we're 17 doing exchanges.

18 Same thing. Well, they're the best we have.
19 No, Bordex is the best there is. We're going to give it
20 to you, and it will force them to either compete with us,
21 treat the customers well, right? The customer is always 22 right.

23 We're going to do whatever it takes, we're 24 earning your business. We know that there's a variety of 25 choices out there.

1 MR. STOLLAIRE: Better, better, better. But
2 the other way is they actually pay attention to their
3 consumers. What can we do to make it better?

4 So they're doing this. And part of it is
5 paying attention to the consumers and saying what's good,
6 what's bad, what needs to be changed, all that other
7 stuff.

8 And that facilitates some of that stuff. So we 9 want people -- as I've always said, brutal honesty,
10 constructive criticism.

11 We welcome that with open arms. But before we 12 go on, it's a common failure of mine as a human being -- 13 and thank you for bringing up Martha, who is a wonderful
14 individual. You know, she's valuable assets in terms of 15 Titanium, one of the most valuable, and is a Swiss Army
16 knife of talent. Let me tell you.

17 Now, that's -- a lot of people are mistaken
18 about something when it comes to Titanium. There's this 19 somewhat of a synonym thing going on that I am Titanium.

20 I am not Titanium. We are a team of people working day
21 and night --

22 MR. RAY: There you go.

23 MR. STOLLAIRE: I am one person as part of a
24 chain of people, an unbreakable chain that circles the 25 globe. I am not Titanium.

1 MR. STOLLAIRE: Titanium is not me. It's not.

2 MR. RAY: Well, it's a team effort, and I
3 believe that each one contributes definitely, and I look
4 at sometimes every one of them --

5 MR. STOLLAIRE: Yes.

6 MR. RAY: Although I haven't had much
7 interaction with Rich, but I will definitely have in the 8 future.

9 MR. STOLLAIRE: Let's change that.

10 MR. RAY: And I look forward to that,
11 definitely.

12 MR. STOLLAIRE: Yeah, let's change that.

13 MR. RAY: The next question. How is the team
14 coming along in the Titanium world? Can you briefly talk
15 about the team formation of the new hires and the 16 resource planning for the future?

17 MR. STOLLAIRE: Sure. You know, so -- I mean,
18 one of the main objectives of ours was to find and create 19 more blockchain developers. And the finding part -- it's 20 a supply-and-demand thing.

21 I mean, there's a limited supply of these 22 individuals. And it's more than just developers, of 23 course. And that's why education is extremely important.

24 We'll have a little talk later on in the year about 25 that, right?

1 MR. RAY: Okay.

2 MR. STOLLAIRE: Easier. But Poma -- there you
3 go.

4 MR. RAY: I've seen some of the Poma.

5 MR. STOLLAIRE: Just add water.

6 MR. RAY: Yeah, okay, okay.

7 MR. STOLLAIRE: We'll keep looking, you know.

8 But now -- and of course, you know we'll entertain
9 anybody's resume. We get hundreds of resumes a week, we 10 go over them all.

11 But we're at the point where we can be choosey,
12 and what I like to do -- good is not good enough. We 13 need excellent.

14 MR. RAY: Choosy --

15 MR. STOLLAIRE: And now I believe -- this is 16 one of the untold X factor things about the Poma
17 relationship is that it was just like we went from zero
18 to fulfilled in certain ways in 3.2 seconds, you know?

19 And I'm really happy about that in many ways.
20 And so talent is no longer a problem. No we're -- at 21 least myself, we're thinking about the -- not the 22 immediate goals so much, but down the road.

23 Now, how do we -- we've got all the ammo.
24 Where we do deploy here? What are we going to do next
25 kind of thing is going on, which is kind of the fun part

1 what you and I would probably call it. When is the road
2 show going to happen, you know?

3 Not that, you know? Because we've got our 4 timelines. And road shows are nice and all, but that's 5 like socializing, going down to the bar, and having a
6 beer with your friends and all that stuff.

7 But frankly, if we were concentrating on that 8 and going down to the bar and having a beer with our
9 friends, it would impact the timelines of us releasing
10 our stuff on time.

11 MR. RAY: Right.

12 MR. STOLLAIRE: So the roadshow is like -- I'm 13 not a Patriots fan, but Bill Belichick, timeout. Ooh.
14 We're doing development.

15 MR. RAY: Timeout.

16 MR. STOLLAIRE: Can I go to the park? No.
17 That's it. No road show. That type of stuff is cool and 18 all, and I think it's part of mass adoption.

19 Like said, down the road here, we're going to 20 talk about education, and that could certainly be part of 21 it, frankly. Is this road show -- bringing it to the 22 major metro areas, not only the United States, but around
23 the world and all.

24 Right now, all eyes on development, Ray.

25 MR. RAY: Okay.

1 MR. STOLLAIRE: Sure.

2 MR. RAY: We do appreciate that.

3 MR. STOLLAIRE: Sure. I'm sorry I have to be
4 vague about it, but that's it. You know?

5 MR. RAY: We have some information. You have 6 an upcoming meeting --

7 MR. STOLLAIRE: Yes.

8 MR. RAY: -- and so we'll have something which 9 is near to closure there, okay.

10 MR. STOLLAIRE: Yes. There's a process for it.

11 I have to follow it. It's kind of like we're all
12 waiting for certain regulations to come out.

13 We could sit around and wait for them to 14 happen, or we could get in front of it and actually
15 interact with these agencies, as we are here at Titanium,
16 and myself, to help mold these things, and advise and 17 educate things along those lines.

18 There are laws, and laws must be followed. I
19 want things to happen fast, but, hey, you do it right or 20 you do it fast.

21 MR. RAY: You do it thorough. Do the right
22 thing. That should be the thing. All right.

23 MR. STOLLAIRE: This way, try to be patient --
24 not my version of patient, your version hopefully.

25 MR. RAY: I have a lot of patience to be honest

1 MR. RAY: This is just in my interest.

2 MR. STOLLAIRE: I think it was --

3 MR. RAY: This is just in my interest.

4 MR. STOLLAIRE: Yes, please. I'm just saying,
5 I mean unless you like that. We don't like the 500
6 emails tomorrow or whatever.

7 Now, I think it was on camera -- did I offer
8 you a job at Titanium? Did I offer --

9 MR. RAY: We'll talk offline. We'll talk
10 offline, Michael. We'll talk offline. (Laughter.)

11 All right. The next is a favorite question for 12 the people who love the master notes. Okay, I'm sure you
13 have something. But this is not -- I'm not -- again, on 14 this question, I don't want you to commit on anything.
15 Because people hold you to that. I just -- this question
16 is more targeted towards a different aspect and 17 (indiscernible) --

18 MR. STOLLAIRE: Sure.

19 MR. RAY: We've heard some great positive
20 feedback about the innovative approach Titanium has about 21 master notes. You know what I'm talking about -- the 22 tiers and other things.

23 MR. STOLLAIRE: Yeah.

24 MR. RAY: I don't expect you to commit again to 25 anything here, but can you talk about how it will be

1 beneficial to the TBAR holders?

2 MR. STOLLAIRE: Sure. Well, I mean, there's
3 two things that I can say again vaguely. And you're
4 right. I made the mistake of saying, like, earlier, you
5 know I'm going to take a number out of thin air -- $10
6 billion for Hewlett Packard, and then it suddenly became 7 real. It's like, I would -- I was just saying, maybe,
8 that type of thing. So I can't go into that.

9 But what it's going to do is encourage 10 participation.

11 MR. RAY: Okay.

12 MR. STOLLAIRE: Across the board -- these dear
13 things. You don't have to go in high. Nobody else is 14 doing that. We're the only ones that are thinking about 15 these things.

16 MR. RAY: Right.

17 MR. STOLLAIRE: So what benefits them is the 18 psychological thing, I've got a master note. And people
19 will be happy about that thing and be rewarded for having 20 it.

21 But we're not going to put it up here. And I
22 think it was a long time ago that I was saying -- well,
23 prices were different. But Ethereum, they were talking
24 about I think like a thousand -- something like that --
25 Ethereum, you'd have the stake, and my -- Alex Casper

1 and that's what these -- these are going through a
2 mountain of that stuff. I keep you not -- in the next
3 room.

4 But I want to make that available to everyone.

5 MR. RAY: Okay, that's not a problem.

6 MR. STOLLAIRE: Yeah, yeah.

7 MR. RAY: All right, this one -- you'll love
8 this question.

9 MR. STOLLAIRE: Okay.

10 MR. RAY: Titanium plans to use the follow the 11 sun principle -- I read their white paper, their revised
12 white paper. I like that -- the follow the sun principle
13 -- provide close 100 percent of time.

14 If this is the case, there is a need for some 15 kind of support model in terms of resources to be spread
16 across the world. Does Titanium plan to set up offices
17 at strategic locations across the globe to manage this?

18 MR. STOLLAIRE: It's already in motion. I told 19 you earlier in the conversation that --

20 MR. RAY: Okay.

21 MR. STOLLAIRE: -- we take a look at the hot
22 spots, and we have to make sure that all the time zones
23 are covered, and the possible cost, but not at the 24 expense of quality.

25 And again, we're going to be keeping careful

1 watch. I think that this is going to be another -- in 2 the typical technology world, it's normal. But we're
3 going to be very -- we're making sure that our employees
4 and their productivity is carefully monitored, shall we 5 say, more metrics that Mike likes.

6 And if they don't live up to our standards,
7 then they're gone. That's it. And we need to make sure
8 that everybody is understanding that from the very 9 beginning so that out of the gate, they have to 10 understand that our standard is not good. It's 11 excellence.

12 And they have to understand that our number one
13 asset above and beyond certain things is our customers --

14 MR. RAY: True.

15 MR. STOLLAIRE: -- pay attention to them. And 16 that means all this analogy that I was referring to agile
17 software methodology, software development methodology at 18 the time looked the same, but it will be applied to our 19 support system.

20 It will be global in nature, of course. It
21 will be 24/7.

22 MR. RAY: Okay.

23 MR. STOLLAIRE: And I believe that we're going
24 to go into the same type -- at least we're considering 25 the same type of tiered mechanism that you would get from

1 Hewlett Packard or IBM, Google or whatever. So that you
2 have an SLA and you get your support taken care of in a
3 certain amount of time, and these things. We're looking 4 into all these possibilities.

5 MR. RAY: (Indiscernible) offerings like the --
6 I remember as part of the project, one of the projects, I
7 had, we had those kind of bronze, silver, gold offerings
8 for that.

9 MR. STOLLAIRE: Right. At Hewlett Packard, if 10 you have premier care, that means within -- you open up a 11 ticket, that's step one, within four hours. And that was 12 of course, under promising and over delivering. It was 13 usually an hour. They get in touch with you.

14 I've been on several projects on top of that 15 where they'd have a dedicated customer focal point. All 16 they did was make sure that those tickets when they were 17 opened, that they were accelerating them.

18 MR. RAY: Got you.

19 MR. STOLLAIRE: But you paid more money.
20 That's just the way it was.

21 MR. RAY: All right, so just to let you know I
22 was in Singapore working for Sony for about four years
23 out there. So I know Singapore. So if you have any 24 questions let me know. It was back in -- I don't 25 remember the year, but I used to work there for Sony in

1 P R O C E E D I N G S

2 MR. STOLLAIRE: Hi, I'm Michael Stollaire, the
3 founder and CEO of both EHI and Titanium, and this is the 4 very first edition of our weekly video update about my
5 blockchain startup, this week in titanium. In the future,
6 we'll also have similar video events for Q & A, and AMA's
7 for the entire Titanium team, so that you can meet us all
8 live and in person, including our development team, and be 9 completely up to date on our accomplishments for that week,
10 any problems we encountered and a brief glimpse at what's 11 going to happen in the near future.

12 And now, with no further ado, here are our key
13 achievements of the week. Titanium and myself were featured
14 in Forbes Magazine and Ink Magazine this week, bringing a 15 lot of exposure to the Titanium project with these 16 placements. In Forbes, there was a quote by me regarding 17 how initial coin offerings or ICO fundraising surpassed both
18 venture capital and angel investors combined several months
19 ago. We have just witnessed the death of venture capitalism
20 and angel investing, in my opinion.

21 For someone like myself that has gone through the 22 process of VC and angel funding, ICOs are simply a miracle,
23 as it allows projects like Titanium to gather startup
24 funding directly through crowd sale. Now, onto the article
25 in Inc, which was a full-feature story about Titanium and

1 our core product of infrastructure as a service on
2 blockchain. The writer obviously got it about Titanium and 3 how our decentralized resources would allow Titanium to 4 provide a better quality of service to our customers with 5 little to no downtime at a fraction of the cost. The best
6 part was he even mentioned one of our competitors, Microsoft
7 Azure, in the article and said quite directly the Titanium
8 solution was both better and cheaper than Azure.

9 We were also featured in CoinPost News in an 10 article titled, "How Titanium will change IT enterprises
11 forever." I guess that says it all, doesn't it -- indeed, 12 written by another author that totally understands the 13 powerful technology behind Titanium. Here's a telling 14 quote, "Titanium is a company that is looking to 15 revolutionize the Internet and make it more efficient than 16 ever before, while also creating an Internet infrastructure
17 that cannot be controlled or destroyed by anyone and is 18 completely open for everyone. They are hoping to usher in 19 the future, the fully-integrated and interconnected global
20 network of devices, which is a huge modernization of the way
21 things currently are. It would prevent any large outage or 22 data breach with the entire network never being able to be
23 harmed or experience a failure with only select nodes
24 being" -- impacted.

25 "Their team is led by CEO Michael Stollaire, who

1 is well-versed in this industry. In fact, he also formed
2 another technology company, EHI, in 1999, which is a
3 consulting agency" -- specializing in enterprise
4 management -- "which is still thriving under Stollaire."
5 "In addition to him, the team features a collective 200-plus
6 years of experience in a number of different industries,
7 including technology, marketing, security, development and 8 more. EHI is also the sister company of Titanium, which is 9 a great sign, as Titanium will inherit the clientele of the 10 trust and respected EHI."

11 "In conclusion, it is about time there's a
12 radical change and improvement in IT enterprises, and 13 Titanium wants to be the company to make that change. They 14 are looking to provide a wide variety of different services
15 that will bring the infrastructure of the Internet into the 16 21st century and make it more secure, more efficient and 17 more advanced than ever before" -- exactly, and we're 18 inexpensive.

19 That's it for media exposure this week. Don't 20 worry, more interviews with me and articles about Titanium
21 are going to be published in Entrepreneur, Fortune, The Los 22 Angeles Times, The New York Times, Huffington Post,
23 TechCrunch and more.

24 Now, let's talk about some key changes in team
25 Titanium this week. Bringing on board an entire team that

1 specializes in advertisement and marketing, which led the
2 path to several successful ICOs that raised over $100
3 million, our core marketing team expanded triple in size and
4 so did our Telegram channel. Believe me, this is not a
5 coincidence. Our core marketing team is now laser-focused
6 on making Titanium's ICO a smashing success and there is no
7 doubt in my mind that we will achieve just that.

8 This same team brought in other trusted resources
9 that they used in the past, and the result was the 10 acquisition of an excellent bounty manager resource and a 11 completely redesigned bitcoin talk announcement thread. The 12 official Titanium announcement thread looks spectacular and 13 it's filled to the brim with both excellent information and 14 stellar graphics, so my sincere thanks to everyone in the 15 social media team and core marketing team for doing such a
16 wonderful job this week.

17 I never seem to find the time to thank them for 18 what they do week in and week out, working seven days a week
19 and over 10 hours every day, so I'm finding the time right
20 now to tell them they are appreciated more than they might 21 think possible.

22 Now, let's get up to date on our fundraising
23 efforts. The Titanium pre-sale results allowed us to blow
24 through 50 percent of our soft cap and beyond at close to 25 $700,000 raised thus far in the Titanium pre-sale. At this

1 rate, it's a matter of if and not when we will eclipse our
2 soft cap of $1 million and Titanium is officially launched
3 as a company. We also started a new promotion as of 4 yesterday, anyone purchasing at least 100 Titanium bars will
5 receive an official Titanium tee-shirt, and anybody
6 purchasing at least 1,000 Titanium bars will receive a
7 Titanium gear box, which will include an official Titanium
8 tee shirt, baseball cap, stickers, 2018 calendar, coffee
9 mug, drink coasters, jigsaw puzzle and more.

10 In the events department, there is a local Los 11 Angeles investors group that I've been invited to attend
12 later this month. I was just contacted yesterday, so the 13 details are still being finalized, but as soon as I know
14 more, you will. I've also been invited to go to a high-end
15 blockchain conference event in Dubai. It's rather expensive
16 and I'm basically on the fence about the value of this trip,
17 so I'm leaving it up to team Titanium and the Titanium
18 community to decide whether or not I should go. So how 19 about books? I'm meeting with a top tech security expert on 20 Friday as he wants my input about blockchain, cryptocurrency
21 and Finn Tech for an upcoming book of his about blockchain
22 security. Television -- I'll be talking all things Titanium
23 on AMC's NewsWatch on January 8th, 2017. This will be a
24 full-featured segment just about Titanium. And for those 25 that don't know, AMC is the third largest cable TV channel

1 in the world. This means millions of people will be exposed
2 to Titanium for the first time. And if we are one, we will
3 no longer be a secret to anyone in the world.

4 We are making excellent progress with regard to 5 developing our core product line as well. The development
6 team has announced this week that they have had a great
7 success with the Titanium infrastructure as a service
8 product. Regarding Ethereum/Smart Contract interweaving,
9 allowing us to virtualize infrastructure equipment like
10 desktops, servers, routers, switches and more, we're right
11 on track to deliver a mockup of our UI soon as well, and on 12 target for our infrastructure as a service core product
13 launch in quarter one, 2018.

14 So I received an early Christmas present from 15 Santa. The CEO of Amazon has announced that they have 16 effectively shot themselves in the foot. Amazon Web
17 Services will not be providing their current services on 18 blockchain. I believe history will reflect on this decision
19 and see it as one of the most -- the worst strategic 20 mistakes ever made by a technology leader. You've got it,
21 one of our main competitors is no longer competing with us.

22 I predict that Titanium is first to market
23 regarding delivering infrastructure as a service on 24 blockchain will now get so far ahead of our competitors that 25 it would cost less for one of them to acquire Titanium

1 companies located in Northern Virginia near
2 Washington-Dulles International Airport. The area was 3 called the Silicon Valley of the East by Atlantic Magazine.

4 As of 2009, more than 50 percent of all U.S.
5 Internet traffic traveled through Northern Virginia. Only 6 four years later, in 2013, as much as 70 percent of the 7 world's Internet traffic traveled through data centers in 8 Loudon County. In fact, in his book, "Tubes," author Andrew
9 Blum calls Ashburn, Virginia a community within the Dulles
10 Technology Corridor the bull's-eye of America's Internet.
11 The Dulles Technology Corridor serves as headquarters for 12 domain name registrar network solutions and network
13 infrastructure company Verisign. The region contains the 14 Internet Society and used to contain the mainframe that 15 houses the master list of all Internet domain names.

16 So let's focus on the key statement here, the 17 "bull's-eye of America's Internet." That's right, our 18 competition, Amazon Web Services, Microsoft Azure and the 19 rest have created a bull's-eye for terrorists that if struck
20 successfully would bring a significant percentage of the 21 American communications infrastructure to the ground.
22 Perhaps some people can live with this, but I simply cannot,
23 and I will not. The solution -- Titanium, a globally
24 decentralized Internet version 3.0 infrastructure that will 25 not have this weakness and cannot be exploited by the

1 enemies of America nor the enemies of any country on the 2 planet.

3 This concludes the first edition of this week in 4 Titanium. We're just getting warmed up, so look for more
5 exciting news in next week's video. With that said, this is 6 Michael Stollaire wishing you a pleasant morning, day or 7 evening wherever you might be in the world and best wishes
8 for an even better tomorrow.

Titanium This Week - Episode Two

1 P R O C E E D I N G S

2 MR. STOLLAIRE: Hello, this is Michael Stollaire
3 again, founder and CEO of both EHI and Titanium, bringing 4 you up to speed on what's transpired this past week with 5 team Titanium and the Titanium community. Welcome to 6 another episode of "Titanium This Week." Thanks to all of 7 you who have busting your tails up until this point. It has 8 not gone unnoticed. The marketing team has done a stellar 9 job and this past week our development team took it to an 10 entirely new level. We've also increased our team's size by 11 more than 15 percent in one week, and that growth will keep 12 occurring.

13 We will be implementing a software development
14 methodology called Agile, which is known to optimize
15 results. And teams of developers surrounding the globe will 16 be built, so that when the sun goes down in North America,
17 but rises in another part of the world, the North American
18 team will effectively hand the baton over to the next team
19 and so on, so that 24/7, 365 -- the sun will never set on 20 Titanium development and we will have the most efficient and 21 effective software development team on the planet.

22 Also, my sincere thanks to the Titanium community
23 and bar purchasers, who have been incredibly resilient,
24 patient and understanding in believing in this project and 25 in me. We started getting our first complaints from

Titanium This Week - Episode Two

1 customers this week, because we simply couldn't keep up with
2 the Titanium bar orders. I'm sorry for the inconvenience
3 this caused, but let's face it -- this is the kind of 4 complaint that I can live with. We've already raised over
5 $3 million. And we have our ICOs automatic payment system
6 set up to accept virtually any currency and exchange it for 7 Ethereum to feed into our smart contract for the Titanium
8 bar.

9 This is another first for the Titanium team. No
10 other ICO has ever done this, but we did. Importantly, it
11 took three weeks for us to raise the first $2 million, but 12 only one more week to raise another million dollars. We're 13 now getting over 200 emails an hour. We have had a minimum
14 of five new six-digit bar purchasers. The momentum is 15 obviously with us and I'll do everything in my power to keep 16 that momentum gathering.

17 Our online community and Telegram, Discord,
18 Twitter and Facebook has doubled in the past week. Every 19 dollar matters, every bar matters and every customer
20 matters. I had the pleasure of speaking to dozens of 21 Titanium clients this week located around the world, and the 22 tradition of the customer being the most important thing
23 that has been adopted by Titanium. I spoke to people who 24 purchased a hundred bars and some that purchased over 25 100,000 and they were all treated the same way, except for

1 the 75,000 bar transaction from Belgium that I handled when
2 I was getting a haircut. I got some chocolate and beer as a
3 bonus on that one.

4 In fact, looking back hundreds of thousands of 5 bars were purchased during my infamous morning runs in the 6 Hollywood Hills. I could go on and on, and only wish you
7 could have heard all the stories I've been able to hear
8 about first-time ICO purchasers and first-time crypto
9 purchasers. They were inspired to dive in because of this 10 project.

11 One important answer to a question I get all the 12 time, how can I help the Titanium project? It's easy.
13 Everyone on the team, all bar purchasers and everyone in the 14 Titanium community -- no matter who they are and what 15 they're doing -- can contribute by continuing to tell
16 everyone they know about the Titanium project and purchasing
17 bars both in person and through every social media outlet
18 you know.

19 So, again, to recap tell your family, tell your 20 friends, tell your colleagues, tell your enemies and tell
21 complete strangers about the Titanium project. I've got 22 more great news. Approximately one hour before filming, I
23 received confirmation that articles about Titanium will be 24 published any second now in Entrepreneur Magazine and on 25 business.com with others coming in the cue in CIO Magazine,

1 Christmas to his family. So following up on that, I've got
2 an important announcement. Soon, the Titanium foundation
3 will be announced and our priority mission will be assisting
4 disabled veterans who cannot work, getting disabled veterans
5 and military veterans jobs who can work and supporting
6 current military personnel, police officers, firemen, EMTs
7 and first responders that are not getting whatever they need
8 to live optimal lives. These people risk their lives every 9 day to keep us safe, and without them we would not have our 10 freedom and liberty. They need the best we can give them, 11 and so we will.

12 Ed told me there's no VA hospital in his area and 13 they don't even have a GI doctor in the hospital that he 14 could get to. They also seemed to be mediocre and they're 15 treating symptoms instead of fixing Ed permanently, so he's 16 in and out of the hospital 10 or 20 times a year. So maybe
17 Titanium has to build that hospital in Nebraska. Then, Ed 18 and military personnel like him will finally get what they 19 deserve from America, the very best. We'll be starting up
20 offices in several major cities around the world, starting 21 right here in Los Angeles, most likely in the Santa Monica
22 area, which has turned into a Silicon Valley of sorts. When 23 those offices do spin up, we're going to raise the bar in 24 terms of transparency and install ultra high-definition web
25 cams in those offices, so you can hear and see exactly what

1 team Titanium is doing 24/7. That's right, pretty soon
2 there will be a streaming Titanium cam.

3 But most importantly, in closing, I want to make
4 sure that no one feels like we've crossed the finish line
5 yet, although we've had success so far we're just getting 6 started and our next objective is the $35 million that we 7 need to raise in our ICO. That's the focus and that's my
8 focus. And that needs to be the top priority for everyone
9 in the next month or two. To use an old cliché, this is a
10 marathon and not a sprint. Sure, we might sell out in a 11 week, but it could go the distance. So we need everyone to 12 endure, be tenacious and persist until our ultimate 13 objective is achieved.

14 If you need help, we're here for you. I'm here
15 for you. No one is too important not to get involved and 16 that includes me. That's why I'm on the frontlines every 17 single day getting my hands dirty and exuding a work ethic
18 that I hope leads by example. This concludes the second
19 edition of this week in Titanium. We're just getting 20 started, so look for even more exciting news in next week's 21 video.

22 With that said, this is Michael Stollaire wishing 23 you a pleasant morning, day or evening wherever you are and 24 best wishes for an even better tomorrow.

PROCEEDINGS

(Video clip plays.)

MR. STOLLAIRE: Hi, I'm Michale Stollaire, the founder and CEO of both EHI and Titanium, and this is the third edition of our weekly video update: Titanium This Week.

Here are our key achievements of the week. We started off the week with a bang, being featured on the third largest cable television channel in the world, being featured on AMC's "NewsWatch".

Millions of people outside of the blockchain subculture were made aware of Titanium, and another important step towards mass adoption was achieved.

On the development front, significant progress is being made. A minimum, buyable product in the form of a private alpha will be achieved later this month or in February.

So the goal of a release of our core product --
Titanium Infrastructure -- as a service will be achieved.
We're right on target.

Now, let's take a look at fundraising. As predicted, Titanium hit a tipping point, and in one short week, we went from $4 million raised to over $10 million.

The day the Electroneum partnership was announced, we brought in $2 million. Yesterday, $4

1 million. The momentum is truly us -- including several 2 more six-digit bar purchases, and a potential seven-digit
3 purchase that might have happened while this was being 4 filmed.

5 As you might recall, I said in last week's 6 video update that this would be a marathon, and not a
7 sprint -- proving yet again that even I can be wrong.

8 A key factor in this was the announcement that 9 I would be joining Team Electroneum as a technical 10 advisor to assist in two important ways.

11 First, I'll be assisting them with technical 12 scalability in their enterprise. As it seems that
13 Electroneum transactions are so fast, Amazon web services
14 just can't keep up.

15 However, Titanium can. With close to two 16 decades of experience in enterprise management, I'm a
17 perfect fit for this role.

18 Also, I'll be helping Electroneum get their ETN
19 asset listed on a number of high-volume exchanges, just 20 like I did for Verge and XVG.

21 My initial targets are Coin-OME (phonetic),
22 Changley (phonetic), Binance (phonetic), and HipMeDC
23 (phonetic) -- for now.

24 I've already gained significant traction with 25 all of them, and now it's a matter of when -- not if --

P R O C E E D I N G S

MR. STOLLAIRE: Hi, I'm Michael Stollaire, the founder and CEO of both EHI and Titanium, and this is the fourth edition of our weekly video update, "Titanium This Week." From the top, I want to thank the Titanium community and the Titanium team for really stepping up to the plate this past week. You all kicked ass.

A special thanks from me personally goes out to some special ladies, as well, the newly formed Titanium girls -- Denise, Pamela and last but not least, Red. Your efforts are appreciated more than you might think possible. The positive impact has been amazing, mainly because you are amazing.

With that said, here are our key achievements of the week. We did it -- halfway through this past Wednesday, all of the 35 million Titanium bars were sold. I cannot thank the Titanium community, the Titanium team and well, everyone for a huge outpouring of support. Now, the real work begins. I've already begun the process of leasing office space here in North Hollywood at the Noble Professional Center, which should be wrapped up soon.

Of course, the first thing I will do after signing the lease is to install the 24/7, 365 Titanium can, so everyone on the planet can hear and see exactly

1 what we're doing. If anybody knows of a way to be more
2 transparent with the Titanium community and the world,
3 just let me know. You know me, if I can improve
4 Titanium, it gets done. I'm also starting to form the 5 follow the sun development team that will circle the 6 planet, so the sun never sets on Titanium development.

7 Essentially, I'm reaching out to the Ethereum
8 development community and doing whatever it takes to get 9 the best developers that exist all over the world. We 10 also hired a top notch Agile scrum master project manager
11 and an excellent QA resource.

12 In short, it's all coming together. Speaking
13 of getting things done, I've started my drain the 14 blockchain swamp movement. After becoming a technical 15 advisor for Electroneum, I've expanded that role to three
16 other blockchain companies -- HTML (phonetic), Bonnie OX
17 (phonetic) and Four (phonetic) and more to come. People
18 will come to know that I only associate Titanium and 19 myself with legitimate projects that have real world use
20 cases. I'm circling the wagons, essentially.

21 The blockchain alliance is born. Also, huge
22 news for the Electroneum community this week. I've 23 successfully gotten ETN listed on HitBTC. And as per my 24 comments on last week's update, the cryptopian monopoly
25 has been effectively destroyed just as I said. I also

BLOCKCHAIN AND CRYPTOCURRENCY 101 ~ MR. STOLLAIRE ~ CURRENCY TRANSITION ~ Accelerants of a Financial Revolution

By Michael Stollaire

INTRODUCTION

As I've stated in several recent interviews, fiat currency, etc. is part of Financial System v1.0. Blockchain and cryptocurrency is Financial System v2.0. Picture them as two islands, with shark-infested waters in-between them.

The Financial System v1.0 island is safe, but everyone knows it is a matter of time before all of the resources on the island run out, and everyone dies. The Financial System v2.0 island is fresh and green with virtually unlimited resources. We, the early-adopters of Financial System v2.0 sense the eventual collapse of Financial System v1.0, and have decided it is worth the risk to jump into the shark-infested water to get to Financial System v2.0. Of course, 25% get eaten by sharks on the way, but the other 75% make it safe and sound and live in an environment of freedom, liberty and prosperity.

Every individual on the Financial System v1.0 island has their own threshold that needs to be hit, before they realize it's time to jump into the shark-infested water, and start swimming. With every passing day, more and more people on the Financial System v1.0 island have their threshold hit and jump in the water.

Eventually, so many people are on the Financial System v2.0 Island that their sheer numbers kill the morale of the people on the Financial System v1.0 island, and they start leaving in droves. Every person that leaves the Financial System v1.0 island is ditching the old fiat currency system, just like we ditched gold and silver in favor of paper money, and then again, starting in the 1950s with the first credit card, Diner's Club, we moved to more and more of a cashless system.

Now, we are at the same point, where we are moving from Credit Cards to blockchain/Cryptocurrency. At first, the majority says that "it will never catch on," but it does, and the old way dies. Every time a currency paradigm shift transpires, there will be a transition period where there will be a few early-adopters, and the remainder of the people will be in a state of distrust and fear of the unknown. Every individual has a specific fear threshold, and so, a certain period of time will need to go by before that individual's threshold is hit and they will ditch the old currency (fiat) for the new one (cryptocurrency).

I am thinking in the next five years the island analogy will transpire in real-life and when 80-90% of people on the planet have adopted Financial System v2.0, the remaining people on the Financial System v1.0 island "go down with the ship," the island sinks into the murky depths and thus ends the era of fiat currency, and thank God for that.

Now, we might also have what fireman call "an accelerant," and just like lighter fluid will start a fire blazing more rapidly, the introduction and adoption of credit cards (that everyone is used to as "normal") that are loaded with Cryptocurrency will act as a bridge between the two Islands, a liaison between Financial System v1.0 and v2.0, and suddenly we have an accelerant in the form of products like TenX, Monaco, Centra, Metal, etc. In this case the transition will transpire far faster than any of us think currently possible.

However, it's like a crack in a dam or your car's windshield. Once the crack forms, it will only get larger and larger, faster and faster. When the dam breaks and tons of water start spewing through it, the dam will be utterly destroyed. At any moment, we will have a flash point where the first crack forms, and in a sudden rush, cryptocurrency will take over the entire world en force. With every passing second, that moment comes closer and closer, with blockchain on its inexorable path. Just like Smart Contracts, cryptocurrency has started its journey, and nothing can stop it.

The Argument Against Proof of Stake (PoS) by Michael Stollaire

Recently, I've been interviewed several times, and it's an eventuality that the topic of how Verge stacks up against the competition in the privacy coin space comes up.

The first thing I consider is the method of mining. In short, if Proof of Stake (PoS) is leveraged, that's it for me. That asset is compromised, and most of Verge's competition is PoS.

I actually had a representative from one of Verge's competitors tell me that PoS "is the future." My response was that I was afraid of what the future held.

Here's why I consider PoS the death toll for a cryptocurrency: PoS uses a form of Dash's Master Node concept. Someone has to have One-thousand (1,000) Dash coins that they "stake" by essentially putting it into a deposit box of sorts. If at any time, the deposit box does not have 1,000 coins in it, the Dash system detects this fact, and your Master Node is disabled. Well, this is a good situation if you were one of the first people involved in any PoS cryptocurrency, when coins cost $1 or less at the time or you were one of the original miners. However, what if you were not an ultra-early adopter? You are in deep trouble. Keeping with our Dash example, the current price for Dash is just over $300, so let's use that round number in our calculations. One-thousand (1,000) Dash coins at $300 each would be $300,000. That's right. You can have your very own Dash Master Node for the bargain price of... wait a second. The average price of a house in America is cheaper. Who can afford that?!

I'll tell you who. The one-percenters and the financial establishments that cryptocurrency was invented in January 2009 to thwart. That's right, just like there are activist investors that buy up 10-25% of a public company's stock so they can leverage their... you guessed it... STAKE... against the company itself, in order to control who the CEO is, who sits on the board of directors, and the general direction and activities of a company, the rich of the world can basically perform a hostile takeover of any cryptocurrency that leverages PoS for mining purposes.

Here's an example, Warren Buffett, who's current net worth is $80.3 Billion.

There are currently 4,719 Dash Master Nodes online. As we said before the approximate cost of a Dash Master Node is $300,000 each, so let's have some math fun, shall we?

$300,000 X 5,000 = $1.5 Billion.

So, Mr. Buffett wakes up one day, and decides that cryptocurrency should play a minor part in his investment portfolio, and he plunks down $1.5 Billion to take over Dash. Since Verge's other competitors that leverage PoS for mining cost significantly less, it's that much easier for Mr. Buffett... or any wealthy individual to compromise any of them.

Therefore, I would never consider investing in a PoS coin.

So, we are now down to three (3) Proof of Work (PoW) assets: Verge, Monero and Bitcoin.

Bitcoin is out, because of two reasons. Some might say that the hostile takeover of Bitcoin already took place, as China controls so much of Bitcoin's PoW hash rate. Please reference the pie chart below. Bitmain's AntPool is 22.3% of Bitcoin's total hash rate by itself.

<https://blockchain.info/pools> (<https://blockchain.info/pools>)

Also, since Bitcoin is "sort of anonymous" it cannot stack up against Verge, which is a true privacy cryptocurrency that has features now — and in the future... — that will make it the premier asset in this area. Again, in my opinion.

Verge also leverages several different PoW mining algorithms to make sure that the chances are slim to none that a hash rate monopoly can take place. Transactions are faster by far, and transactions per second are twenty (20) times that of Bitcoin. The mobility feature of Verge are also secure and private, and... well, that's it. I don't really have to go any further, because we can logically deduce that Verge is superior to Bitcoin in several ways.

Therefore, only Monero, ZCash and Verge are left.

There has been several deep-dives done on Monero, as far as due diligence of their privacy and security features are concerned that bring up valid points about the lack of Monero's privacy:

<http://hackingdistributed.com/2017/04/19/monero-linkability>
(<http://hackingdistributed.com/2017/04/19/monero-linkability>)

After the implementation of the much-anticipated Wraith Protocol™, most would agree that Verge is on equal-footing with Monero, regarding privacy and security features, if not slightly better, and Verge is just getting started. There's much more to come in the near and distant future, I assure you.

However, back to Monero. Another key element of an asset is whether or not it is an inflationary or deflationary currency. Bitcoin has a limit on the sheer number of coins minted, for instance, and so does Verge. They are deflationary currencies that will hold or increase their value over time.

Titanium Blockchain Infrastructure Services Inc.: The Argument Against Proof of Stake (PoS) by Michael ... Page 3 of 11

But, Monero (and PIVX) has an unlimited supply, just like fiat currencies such as the US Dollar. That means as time goes on, more and more Monero coins will be minted and its value will decrease.

Right there, it's game over, at least for me. However, I do have to point out that Verge has Tor/i2P "baked in" and this means that both sender and receiver IP addresses are obfuscated. Does Monero do that? No, it does not.

On to ZCash. Well, it's got its fair share of issues. Over six-hundred, it seems:

<https://github.com/zcash/zcash/issues> (<https://github.com/zcash/zcash/issues>)

However, the main issue for me is that they basically had an ICO, just like NAV and PIVX, etc. If you don't have an issue with 20% or more of the entire supply of an asset going to line the pockets of its initial investors and team, you certainly should.

Here's how one blogger on Steemit put it:

"The ZCash team decided to launch ZCash as an altcoin so they were able to fund the development: ZCash has a US-based company behind it and will tax 20% of the mining revenue during the first 4 years to pay off private investors. If ZCash were to succeed, the private investors will benefit greatly from the launch of this cryptocurrency. Although I don't like ICO's, a public coinsale (a form of crowdfunding) would have been a more fair and open way to fund development than seeking money from private investors."

Also...

"Another problem with ZCash is the fact that it's brand new cryptography. Nobody can really guarantee that there aren't some bugs in the system that will make it possible to deanonymize transactions or create coins out of thin air. What's more, if coins are being created, it will not even be detectable because, unlike Monero (and Verge), you can't verify the total amount of coins in the ZCash blockchain."

Verge had no pre-mine. Verge had no ICO. The entire Verge Team is composed of pro-bono volunteers, including yours truly. That's right. We work for free. Why? Because that's how much sheer belief we have in Verge and we don't have a "golden parachute" end game like those involved with ZCash.

Does ZCash have a multi-algorithm mining methodology to prevent the platform being controlled by a few centralized GPU-based mining farms? No it does not. They can be taken over, just like Bitcoin.

Now, there is only one coin standing: Verge.

Unlike 99.99% of Blockchain start-ups and Initial Coin Offerings (ICOs), the Titanium Core Team is not composed of relative newcomers to technology. In stark contrast, the Titanium Core Team has over two-hundred (200) years of combined experience. This is also not the first technology company that Titanium’s Founder and CEO, Michael Stollaire, has ever formed. In 1999, Mr. Stollaire founded EHI, a technology consultancy specializing in enterprise infrastructure management.

EHI and its consultants are known in the industry as top-tier, elite personnel, as shown by their impressive Client List and Testimonials.

Most Blockchain start-ups and ICOs face a very serious problem after they develop a viable product and or service: finding companies and people that will actually purchase them and use them.

Titanium will not have this problem. As EHI’s sister company, Titanium will simply inherit EHI’s clientele, and since EHI is considered a trusted source of excellent customer service and personnel, Titanium will also be held in high regard.

In the eyes and opinion of Mr. Stollaire, in fact, Titanium is an organic evolution of EHI, and should effectively be considered “EHI v2.0.”

What follows is a short excerpt of some of EHI’s customers, which Titanium will leverage immediately:

- Accenture
- Apple
- Applied Materials
- Boeing
- Cargill
- Citizens Bank

Nature never intended Man to be generous. Well, don't get me wrong. Humans are generous but only to a point. And only till the generosity massages one's ego. This lack of generosity is what gave birth to financial transactions. I give you something I have and you want. But what do I get in return? This is the question that is at the heart of everything we do and have ever done.

The Barter System: Exchange of Goods

The earliest transactions involved the exchange of goods. So when George the very first, came out of his cave one fine prehistoric morning to give John (the very first) a spear tip he had been working on last evening, he got a deerskin purse in return from John to keep his tools in. That was the beginning of what is now known as the "barter system," or the exchange of goods as a means of financial transactions.

While the above story is a figment of my imagination, I'm sure you get the point. As humans turned towards an agrarian age, the earliest forms of barter included grains, vegetables and livestock. When humans started moving about from one region to another, traded goods became a medium of exchange. I'll give you my salt if you give me your spices.

The Rise of Commodity Money

As human civilization became more complex, there was a felt need for a more uniform medium of exchange that could get things done faster. This gave rise to "commodity money," objects that have their own intrinsic value as well as have value as a medium of exchange or, money. Precious metals fit this definition. Gold, silver, bronze and copper became popular as money and coins were minted to give them their specific value. The first recorded minted coins were found in Lydia in present day Turkey. Gold and silver were used by Egyptians and Mesopotamians, respectively.

This was probably a very exciting time in the history of humans when people were making a real effort to transition from goods to money as a medium of exchange. Their attempts at creating coins or bars of specific weights were the first really commendable efforts in trying to create a uniform system of financial transactions. Not only did humans start using “money” for buying and selling goods, but for other transactions as well, like fines for wrongdoing, taxes, interest on debts and compensation for breaking laws.

Between 700 and 500 BC, coins started being extensively used in India, China and cities around the Aegean Sea. At around the same time, money was deified by Romans in the form of the Goddess Moneta, from which words that mean “pertaining to money (monetary)” have evolved.

Development of Paper Currency

The development of the bank note, or paper currency, can be traced back to ancient China during the seventh century. They were officially introduced by the Song Dynasty in the 11th century. While the American bill says “In God We Trust,” the Chinese paper money had a more ominous statement on it—“All Counterfeiters Will Be Decapitated.” Paper money soon became popular in Europe during the 13th century. A paper note was inherently without any value in itself. It was cheap to manufacture and yet it could be deemed to have a set value that was printed on it. The idea was enticing. No more carrying hefty amounts of coins or blocks of precious metals.

Paper money ruled the international financial markets for, like, ages. Paper money made international trade easy and governments started trading in currencies of other nations. The more powerful and stable a government, the more powerful its currency.

Introduction of Credit Cards

The move towards “digital money” was necessitated by a burgeoning economy that was blurring geographical and political barriers. While the concept of using a worthless instrument to denote money dates back to the time of the Mesopotamians, approximately five centuries ago, it wasn’t until 1946 when a smart individual by the name of John Biggins introduced the Charge-It card. Biggins was a Brooklyn banker who in his immense financial wisdom introduced to the world the ancestor of the now ubiquitous credit card.

The first credit card to be introduced was the Diner’s Card, in 1950. Envisioned as a charge card for travel and entertainment, it soon caught the fancy of the general public and by 1951 had more than 20,000 card holders. American Express launched its own card that has the claim of being the first true plastic card in 1959, replacing cardboard and celluloid of the Diner’s Card. Soon, major banks started introducing their own cards in what would become true “credit” cards where they allowed consumers to carry their monthly balance forward for a nominal charge.

Money at Your Fingertips

The late 1990s saw the emergence of “mobile money” and “mobile banking.” Earlier transactions were done via SMS and mobile web. With the emergence of truly smart mobile phones, mobile banking became seamless, effortless and accessible. Bank accounts were synced to mobile phones via mobile apps that allowed people to access their accounts and perform financial transactions. Today, you can visit your friendly neighborhood grocery store, buy items you want and pay with your mobile phone. It’s that simple.

But Money is Controlled!

In all of the above cases, money as a medium of exchange is always regulated and controlled by a central authority. The Federal Reserve System, or simply The Fed, for example, controls money in the United States. A central banking system is the backbone of the global financial system. This has led to financial power being concentrated within a small group. People have no choice but to save their monies within this “financial mainstream” and perform daily transactions within its frameworks. They do not have unfettered access to their own money and often have to pay exorbitant fees for transactions.

The Era of True Democratization of Money

The introduction of Bitcoin in 2008 was nothing short of a miracle. While there was no “flash and bang” moment at the time Satoshi Nakamoto (bless his/her/their soul/s!) published his/her/their landmark paper, “Bitcoin: A Peer To Peer cash System,” the current scenario is for everyone to see and behold. January 2009 saw the introduction of the first bitcoins, a truly democratic, independent and incorruptible currency that has taken the world by storm; literally and figuratively. At last count, bitcoins had increased in value to almost 1000% in the last 12 months.

The source code of this revolutionary new “cryptocurrency” was blockchain technology. So radical and path-breaking is this technology that it can serve to transform almost every field of human endeavor on this planet. Today, people have taken to bitcoins and a variety of other “digital currencies” like the proverbial fishes to water and birds to air. What these cryptocurrencies offer is something that is far greater in value—the ease of accessibility of one’s own money and the ability to use it as and when one likes without any limits and obstacles, both physical and perceived.

Cryptocurrencies, one can argue, has brought the financial system of the world full circle. From the time the very first George and John exchanged the spear tip and the deerskin purse to individuals trading bitcoins in this time, monetary transactions are truly open, trustless, democratic and without any regulation. This inherent nature of money has always enamored humans throughout history and there have been many attempts to stop centralization of finance. The emergence of cryptocurrencies is a brave new attempt to go back to the original idea of money—to be a medium of exchange without being overtly controlled by anybody.

Titanium Blockchain Infrastructure Services Inc.: What is TBIS?

What is TBIS?

Let's begin with the symbolism that encompasses our vision, Titanium.

Is there any element that calls to mind the notion of strength quite like titanium? Named after the Titans, Greek gods of myth, the 22nd element on the Periodic Table appears in the micron thin skins of airliners and smart phones, body piercings and medical equipment and even the main element of sunscreen. It is a lustrous transition metal with a silver color, low density, and high strength.

Titanium resists corrosion and is particularly strong and lightweight. It's as strong as steel, but only 45 percent the weight, according to Los Alamos National Laboratory. And it's twice as strong as aluminum, but only 60 percent heavier.

We at Titanium Blockchain Infrastructure Services Inc. (TBIS) picked titanium purposefully, to represent our vision of lightweight strength via fundamentals of free enterprise. We intend to solve problems with what we consider to be the digital titanium, blockchain technology. In today's marketplace, we see corporate giants being reborn in the spirit of collaboration. Companies like Google, Amazon, Red Hat, Angie's List, Lyft, Uber, eBay, Airbnb, and many like it show the power of entrepreneurialism combined with corporate coordination. We want to solve problems that allow the masses to become involved in bringing technology services to the world.

In short, we wish to make a franchise out of cloud computing.

TBIS is bringing the decentralized power of the blockchain to bear on cloud infrastructure. We intend to give individuals the ability to run their own datacenters at their homes, or in a large corporate Data Center facility while being wrapped in the Titanium blockchain security context. Imagine the strength of your computing equipment and reliability being the basis for your reimbursement. We also intend to make perceived obsolete cryptocurrency mining equipment useful once again. Our vision is going to revolutionize cloud computing like Linux did to home and business computing, like Uber and Lyft did to transportation, like Amazon does for online shopping, and like how Airbnb does to travel housing.

We intend to make partnership our core competence. Open Source collaboration is our central component. Software giants have been forced to evolve to embrace open source technologies to survive. Open source technologies are the backbone

Dear Community, Titanium will initiate a process to distribute TBAR to HiBTC BAR token holders. The HiBTC team confirmed last week that they will be providing TBIS with necessary wallet information for TBAR distribution to those who held BAR Token on HiBTC's exchange at the time of our snapshot Feb 21st. This communication was encouraging, and we hope very much that HiBTC was sincere. Should we not receive necessary information promised by HiBTC by Wednesday, April 4th... See More

TBAR Distribution Update. No further action is required on the part of BAR token holders using IDEX, Etherdelta, and/or HiBTC.
-Those holding BAR on IDEX, and Etherdelta will receive TBAR via distribution by Titanium staff. HiBTC will handle TBAR distribution. For BAR on IDEX/Etherdelta, TBAR will be sent to individual wallet addresses based on the fork timing. No additional action is required on the part of BAR holders who are eligible for TBAR distribution.

Titanium has engaged the services of an audit, discovery and forensic analysis team. TBAR distribution has been paused at the advice of this team and of law enforcement officials. There is reason to believe that stolen BAR may, indeed be recovered and the perpetrator brought to justice. Please stay tuned to @TBISINC for more details as they become available.

Eri Ma Hello Guys

A friend of mine participated in the ICO and afterwards moved all of his BARs to many different Wallets. So his BARs are now in many different Wallets which belong to him. Will the new 'TBARS' be distributed to these different Wallets or does he have to send back the 'BARs' to the Wallet which he used for the ICO? See More

Official update for February 22nd: goo.gl/8uUM43

TBAR distribution has begun and lost ICO transactions are now recoverable!

Please read carefully and share

Anyone who purchased BAR before 4pm (PST) on February 21st will receive TBAR in a 1:1 ratio automatically.

Anyone who purchased bar after 7pm (PST) on February 21st will not receive TBAR without manual approval on a case by case basis.

Anyone who purchased BAR between 4PM to 7PM will be notified separately through email.

TBIS Begins distribution of forked ICO token (TBAR)

Just 24 hours after announcing theft of 16 million BAR tokens.

Titanium is proud to announce that TBAR has begun distribution to ICO participants!

If your BAR is in an ERC20 wallet like MEW, Metamask, or Ledger, TBAR will automatically arrive next to BAR in your wallet. There is no need to do anything else, please allow 24-48 hours for TBAR distribution.

Anyone who used an exchange address during ICO may now recover their lost transaction via this form: https://goo.gl/ykVbVD. See More

**ONLY** FOR THOSE WHO ACCIDENTALLY ENTERED AN EXCHANGE or NonValid ERC20 ADDRESS WHEN BUYING DURING ICO

This form is for those who purchased BAR during the ICO but used an exchange address instead of their own ETH address.

Required

Email address *

Did you accidentally enter an exchange address during ICO?

Dear Titans,
Regrettably, at least two exchanges did not stop BAR from trading at our request yesterday afternoon. In lieu of trading that happened after our official announcement of malicious action and theft of 16mil BAR, we have decided to individually review all 22,000 wallets with BAR. For most this means that they will automatically receive TBAR beginning today. For a few this means that they will receive TBAR on a sliding scale based on a conversion rate snapshot of do . We would like to thank everybody for taking part in our ICO sale! We sold 35,000,000 coins in only 18 days! 41 days faster than we expected! That is the beginning of the future for TBIS Inc. Special thanks to our partners Electroneum and The Hntcoin Foundation for help! 🙌🙌🙌
